

The Korean-American Scientists and Engineers Association (KSEA) and
The Korea-U.S. Science Cooperation Center (KUSCO) present:

The Fifth Annual Young Generation Technical and Leadership Conference

YGTLC '09

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY & SOCIETY:
BUILDING A BETTER TOMORROW

The Omni Dallas Hotel @ Park West
DALLAS, TEXAS ∞ JANUARY 9-11, 2009

The Fifth Annual Young Generation Technical and Leadership Conference (YGTLC) is the flagship event for Korean-American young professionals, graduate and undergraduate students. It aims to showcase the latest research and innovations, promote career development, and provide networking opportunities to the young members of KSEA.

The three-day program includes technical presentations, speeches from distinguished industry and academic leaders, career development and networking sessions, and a team competition. By training future KSEA leaders across America, the conference intends to advance and promote the Young Generation movement throughout the nation.

This year's conference focuses on the central role that science and technology plays in the development of society, and how the needs of society impact the direction of science and technology. The YGTLC will feature speakers and workshops that engage the participants on the ways that society and technology will interact to build the world of tomorrow.
